Washington, March 24.-The interior department has decided that it cannot made entries of lands south of Snake lt was given out when he left that he river, Ida., under what was the proosed pumping system of the Minidoka irrigation project, but which was abandoned by the reclamation service, leaving entrymen without a prospect of having their lands irrigated. A large number of complains were sent to the secretary of the interior, the major part of them being from persons living at Burley, on the south bank of the Snake river, opposite lands of the Min-idoka project. An agent sent to investigate conditions found about one hundred and fifty settlers, many of whom had been induced to take up lands by land agents, and who are now unable to proceed with the cultivation of these lands or unable to make a living while attempting to live up to the require-ments of the homestead act and acquire title. Many of these entrymen are hauling water from the river for domestic use and for irrigating small patches of land devoted to gardens. They are desirous of having the interior department grant them leave of absence from their lands pending con-struction of irrigation works by the government, by which they can be irrigated and reclaimed.
